In the issuance of a security badge, the Airport Compliance Office relies heavily on the representations and certifications made by applicants and tenant supervisors or managers. However, the Airport Compliance Office retains the ultimate authority, right and responsibility to determine if an applicant, in fact, has a legitimate need for an ID badge/access card, and thus if such request shall be granted.

BGR'S EXPIRED BADGE POLICY

Per TSA directives, any badge holder that allows his or her badge to expire, even for 1 day, must be treated as a new applicant in order to get a new badge issued to them. Their expired badge must be immediately turned in to BGR's Compliance office, and all access, other than escorted, is suspended until the rebadging process is completed. The individual must fill out a new application, and resubmit fingerprints/background checks, if required. Upon return of all background check results, the individual must retake all applicable training.

Prior to badge reissuance, the applicant must pay $70 to reimburse BGR for time and fees involved with processing a new applicant. This cost is to be covered by the applicant, not the employer of the applicant.

For any badge that is not returned within 30 days of expiration, a $200.00 non-returned badge fee is charged to the badge holder.

I have read the above policy, and understand it.
